

A 10x10 grid with 30 black circles scattered across it. The circles are distributed in a way that suggests a random process, with some clusters and some empty spaces. The grid lines are light gray, and the circles are black with white centers. The circles are located at various intersections of the grid lines, representing discrete points in a 2D space.